

Loïc E. Coutelier is a French lawyer qualified to practice law in the United States (New York). As the Director of Arbitration at Modria, Loïc advises the company on issues relating mainly to arbitration, algorithmic dispute resolution, and general institutional case management. Loïc oversees various programs, including one handling more than 200,000 arbitration cases a year in the State of New York.

Before joining Modria, Loïc was working for the Gould Center, at Stanford Law School. His research focused on issues relating to inter alia international arbitration, WTO litigation, the Alien Torts Statute, international trade regulation, mediation, online dispute resolution, and dispute systems design. Loïc also worked as a Deputy Counsel at the Secretariat of the ICC International Court of Arbitration in Paris and in Hong Kong, where he administered arbitration cases between parties from Europe, the Middle East, Africa, Asia, the Pacific region, North America, and Eastern Europe.